

The Children's Movement Internship- CSU Fresno CFS

October 29, 2021

Position: Community Organizing Intern

Description: The Children's Movement (TCM) Community Organizing intern will work with TCM Community Organizing staff to support movement events, the Resident Engagement & Advocacy Program, which includes supporting a Residents Council made up of resident leaders from across Fresno County, all with the goal of developing community leaders to impact policies related to childhood well-being in our community. Our work will focus on a broad range of issue areas selected by the resident leaders themselves, and are either directly or indirectly related to childhood health, wellness and education in Fresno County. Activities may include:

- Supporting movement events (either virtual or in-person)
- Engaging in 1:1 and small group conversations with Residents related to issue organizing and advocacy
- Assisting with our social media and online outreach efforts with ideas and design
- Helping strengthen our survey data collection and analysis efforts

Requirements: Interns must be willing and able to work in-person and/or virtually, depending on the circumstances of each meeting. This means having access to reliable internet and a laptop. This internship may require conducting outreach, in the form of emails, text messages, telephone calls, or face-to-face meetings with Fresno County residents who are involved in the project. TCM is a new, growing and fast-paced work environment- successful interns will be flexible, creative and take initiative in bringing ideas to the table and, if accepted and approved, be willing to help make those ideas come to fruition. Above all, interns must be passionate about community engagement, organizing, and building community power for the benefit of Fresno children.

How to Apply: Interested applicants should email Michael Espinoza, TCM Director at mike@tcmfresno.org. In addition to your contact information and most updated resume, please share 250 words explaining your interest in community organizing around children's issues. Mike will schedule an interview with interested candidates.

About TCM: The Children's Movement is a network of residents from diverse backgrounds and places working together to improve outcomes for children by championing policies that advance equity and justice across Fresno County. Equity means an institutional commitment to support the children and families whose needs are greatest; Justice means a community commitment to eliminate structural inequalities and right historical wrongs.

We accomplish this by engaging in relationship building and deliberative dialog among trusted and credible leaders who are vertically aligned around a belief that we can achieve more by working together.
